MESSAGE

I am very delighted to know that The Muktadhara Foundation is going to organize an International Bangla Festival and 19th Book Fare in New York.

Bangladesh is enriched with different cultures and traditions. Bangla is only language, for which many people sacrificed their lives to establish as a state language in 1952. That's why UNESCO has been declared 21st February as an 'International Mother Language Day' in 1999.

This festival to be held in USA, will bring together not only thousands of Bangla speaking people, but will also afford to everyone the opportunity to understand diversity of Bangla cultures and traditions. The Muktadhara Foundation set an example of ways that a community comes together to work for a better understanding and appreciation of various cultures.

I congratulate and best wishes to all concern of this wonderful event, specially all Bangla speaking peoples, leadership staff of the Muktadhara Foundation, volunteers and supporters on this exciting occasion.

Joy Bangla, Joy Bangabandhu,
Long Live Bangladesh.
